

Dyld Mawrth 21 Mai

Quickly, Kenny and Keiren rushed speedily down the street chasing their brother Carl into the supermarket carpark. Scared, they both stopped behind a car when they saw two enormous cane loads guarding an enormous castle smothered in glass windows. They both looked at the building and thought how would they find their brother Carl in this terrifying tower?

As they both stood behind the car waiting for the guards to take off, their desperation grew bigger and bigger and bigger. They needed to find a way to pass these green guards but they couldn't think of anything to complete this challenge. In an instant Kenny and Keiren found their only chance to get through without the guards noticing them. They both saw an old smelly man with two children gracefully walking past the car they were located behind. He was pushing a shopping trolley. They both knew they must dive onto the bottom of the trolley. This was now or never!

With the biggest leap they could ever make they both landed on the bottom of the Shinney giant food cart, with square holes and some sort of hole seat the children were sitting in. When they landed safely on the bottom of the Shinney shopping trolley the old man pushed the trolley inside the store. As soon as they got inside, they departed from the trolley and ran behind a tower of cereal boxes, Kenny and Keiren saw the most terrifying building they had ever seen. Terrified they looked in shock at the human teleporter transporting lazy humans

Without the need for walking. It was surrounded by giant people that looked like they were very angry as vile as a devil walking around pushing food cars. However they saw their brother's worse enemy, burgers, he hated them. They hoped he would never see them.

Suddenly, Carl saw the burgers, he slowly walked over to them. He saw his perfect chance, a whole aisle of unguarded burger. He hopped like a toad into a bunch of burgers and ripped them up into small pieces. He ruined all the burgers before the foolish humans could see him. Head was pounding. He hopped out. He ran. However he saw the humans coming around the corner...

Desperate, Kenny and Keiren started looking for their brother Carl. They had looked in every aisle searching for him. In an instant, they saw him running rapidly from aisle to aisle screaming and shouting. To their horror they saw there was a big problem. There was a big human urgently chasing him quickly. The both raced around the shop knocking things off shelves and tripping people over. Kenny and Keiren knew they must stop them.

Immediately, Kenny and Keiren stopped spotted Carl in the corner of their eyes. Rapidly they ran over to Carl and took him out of the store. As they departed from the supermarket with anger into the sun Carl began to plead sorrowfully for forgiveness. After a while his two brothers finally forgave him for all the damage he had made in the store however they were still furious for him running off.

in the first place. They hoped he would never do anything so stupid again.